NEW HEADQUARTERS FACILITY

By James Anderson,
General Manager/CEO

On April 29, 2019, the JREC Board of Directors approved the construction of a new headquarters facility. The reality of constructing a new facility has been a main topic of discussion at the JREC Annual Membership Meetings for the last several meetings.

The existing office building, as of May 2019, is over 66 years old and does not meet current government regulations, fire codes, and current ADA requirements for handicapped access for staff or members. Significant structural concerns, environmental concerns, known or suspected, exist in the current facilities. The current facility is not adequate for the number of current employees, and the expected growth of the cooperative in the next 20 years will further exceed the capability and capacity for a safe environment for the staff.

General contractor HOEFT Builders was selected to lead the construction on the new administration, shop, and warehouse building for JREC. A Chippewa Falls-based architectural firm, River Valley Architects, Inc., specifically architect Linda Powers, was also chosen for the project. Linda Powers designed the new 38,298-square-foot building, as well as associated paved parking, landscaping, site and street frontage improvements.

JREC Board of Directors, management, employees, and Linda Powers are excited to finally see the building process begin to take shape. This new facility will serve JREC and its members for a minimum of 50–75 years and will have room to expand for the future if the need arises. JREC is fully committed to being part of the community for many years to come.

On June 3, 2019, JREC began construction of a new headquarters facility on the existing property owned by the cooperative in Ladysmith, Wisconsin. The building construction officially broke ground on May 28, and when completed will offer the members and staff an updated facility capable of housing the front-line technology that it takes to efficiently provide outstanding member services and system reliability. The new facility will also offer a training room, which will be available to community groups.

After 1–1/2 years of studies, meetings, and consultant work we are excited to be moving forward with the new facility. Both prior to and subsequent to the construction, the JREC board and staff have extensively reviewed the suitability of the new building site, including hydrology, soil studies, traffic studies, etc., that support the suitability of the existing JREC property for construction of a new headquarters building.
